

We decorate our lives meticulously with golden balls and anglé hair, curious obscure talents,
profanity
and interrogatory words.

Our gilded minds are hung with ornate portraits
of perfection
and silky drapes.

We grace our graves
with greener grass.

July 71